Cardinals Hunger For Revenge; Will Send Derringer To Hill Against Earnshaw In Crucial Game

SPORTSMAN'S PARK, St. Louis, Oct. 9.—With this the crucial game of the World Series, Manager Connie Mack of the Athletics sent his ace moundman, Bob Grove, to the hill today in the attempt to retrieve lost ground from the Cardinals in the current series.

It had been predicted that Earnshaw would be his pitching selection but Mack crossed the dopesters by using Grove, who has won one game and lost one, and saving Earnshaw for the deciding game if another game is needed.

Paul Derringer, winning pitcher on the Cardinal staff this year, but who lost the series opener to Grove, was Manager Street's choice.

FIRST INNING

Philadelphia—With the count three and two, Bishop fanned Haas out on a grounder, Gelbert to Bottomley. Gelbert speared Cochrane's hard liner. No runs, no hits, no errors.

St. Louis—Flowers grounded out, Bishop to Foxy. Roettger lashed out a single over second. Frisch hit into a snappy double play, Bishop to Williams to Foxy. No runs, one hit, no errors.

SECOND INNING

Philadelphia—Simmons out, Frisch to Bottomley. Foxy dropped a single into right field. Miller forced Foxy at second, Gelbert to Frisch. Miller took second on a wild pitch. Dykes out on a bouncer, Flowers to Bottomley. No runs, one hit, no errors.

St. Louis—Given a vociferous ovation, Martin fouled out to Foxy.

BORAH TO CONSIDER CANCELLING DEBTS IF EUROPE DISARMS

Viewed As Senator's Answer To Hoover Suggestion

By ROBERT S. ALLEN

U. S. Staff Correspondent

(Copyright 1931, By U. S. A.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—An offer to give serious consideration to the cancellation of American war debts if European powers will reduce German reparations and disarm, was made today by Senator Borah (R) of Idaho, chairman of the powerful senate foreign relations committee.

"If Europe is willing to reduce reparations and disarm," Borah declared, "we could afford to consider cancellation."

This announcement was viewed as Senator Borah's answer to the President's plan for a two year extension of the moratorium on inter-allied debts which he opposed. Borah told Mr. Hoover he opposed further concessions to the allied powers on debts until they took concrete action in cutting reparations and armaments.

At the time the President proposed his one year moratorium on reparations and war debts, Borah agreed in order to give Europe time to reflect on its action. He now demands that Europe "get going" toward "disarmament."

Until the allied powers disarm and revise reparations, Borah holds, there can be no hope in Europe for peace or economic stability. Under present conditions of mounting armaments and crushing reparations claims, he declares, only war and chaos can result. There is not enough money in the United States treasury, Borah asserts, to save Europe under present circumstances.

It is Senator Borah's position that it is not American war debts that are destroying Europe. These obligations, he holds, amount only to eleven billion dollars spread among half a dozen nations. It is the increasingly crushing and sinister burden of armaments and reparations, he asserts, that is pushing Europe to the abyss.

The American people will never consent to modification of the war debt agreements until Europe takes steps to slash reparations and reduce armaments, in Borah's opinion. Europe must act, and until it does the people of this country will demand their due, Borah holds.

IDENTIFY "SCARECROW MAN"

Man Who Stands Staring With Arms Outstretched Is Mentally Ill

DENVER, Oct. 9.—The mystery of Denver's "scarecrow man" was partially solved today. Physicians declare, however, that the malady which affects the man who stands with arms outstretched making no motion and staring straight ahead, in a Denver hospital is as much a puzzle today as it was a week ago when a passing motorist first noticed the strange figure standing in a field near Holyoke, Colo.

Wesley Mays, Beardsley, Kan., farmer, identified him as his brother, Charles Mays.

"Hello, Charley," Wesley said.

The "scarecrow man" made no move and uttered no sound. Physicians believe him to be suffering from amnesia and aphasia. Such a condition, they say, could be caused by a great fright.

Wesley Mays said his brother left the family's farm in Kansas last June to visit a sister, who lives near Ovid, Colo.

A traveling salesman first saw the man standing in a field near Holyoke Friday morning. Passing the same field three hours later he again saw the motionless figure, apparently in the same spot. He notified local authorities, who brought the man, now identified as Charles Mays, to the Colorado Psychopathic Hospital here.

SLAIN, KIDNAPED?

Miss Marion Roberts, sweetheart of Jack (Legs) Diamond, New York racketeer, has been slain or is being held captive in fear she might identify him at first. Grace Strasmick, of Roxbury, Conn., mother of the former show girl, "I hate that Diamond," said Mrs. Strasmick. "He caused all this trouble."

CIVIL WAR AND BLOODSHED IS BERLIN THREAT

Communist Bombs, Political Outrages Upset Nation

BERLIN, Oct. 9.—Threats of civil war and bloodshed, punctuated by a Communist bombing at Essen and fiery speeches by political jingoes, echoed throughout Germany today.

The bomb blast damaged the home of Franz Bracht, burgomaster of Essen, who recently declined to enter the cabinet of Chancellor Heinrich Brüning as minister of the interior. Bracht and his family were awakened from their sleep by the explosion, but no one was injured.

Police blamed Reds for the outbreak, recalling the fact that Bracht had been responsible for the recent discharge of a Communist municipal official.

In the midst of threatening disorders and bloodshed, Dr. Brüning struggled heroically to form a new cabinet at the request of President Von Hindenburg, but was balked by the refusal of prominent politicians to accept the responsibility of heading the government in those crucial times.

The role being played by Adolf Hitler, leader of the radical national Socialist (Fascist) party assumed new significance today with the revelation he would be received by President Von Hindenburg tomorrow for the first time.

The forthcoming visit aroused widespread speculation. Whether the president would ask Hitler to refrain from his trouble-making during the present time of stress or threaten him with dire punishment if he continued, could not be learned.

DISCOUNT RATE UP

PARIS, Oct. 9.—Following the action of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York yesterday, the Bank of France today raised its discount rate from two to two and one-half per cent.

TREASURY BALANCE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—Treasury balance as of Oct. 7, $256,039,517.95. Expenditures, $12,130,412.34. Customs Receipts, $8,254,519.61.

FRANCO-AMERICAN DISARMAMENT PLAN MAY HELP RECOVERY

Agreement Possible; President Moves To Aid Railroads

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—The possibility of an agreement between France and the United States to lead the world in reducing armaments, while further extending the holiday on intergovernmental debts, was discussed in official circles today as reports poured in indicating President Hoover's "prosperity program" had strengthened American banking interests.

If Mr. Hoover and Premier Laval of France, can reach an "understanding" on debts, reparations and disarmament late this month, it was generally felt, the world will be started on its way to business recovery. The prospects of remedying the world's economic ailments even overshadowed the buoyant response given the President's financial program by American banking interests.

The administration meanwhile turned its attention to the problems of American railroads. There was some concern over the pending decision of the interstate commerce commission on the plea of the carriers for a fifteen per cent increase in rates. The prevailing opinion being that the appeal would be rejected but the commission has given no indication of its attitude. It may render its decision during the coming week end.

A long visit to the White House by Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, revealed Mr. Hoover's desire to help improve the economic status of the carriers. It was reported that Willard served as an audience while the President expounded his plans for helping put the railroads back on a paying basis. Neither the White House nor Willard would reveal any of the plans.

The President's program for liquidating assets in the banks is being met with prompt ratification by bankers everywhere. The huge $500,000,000 credit corporation he proposed, will be established before the end of the week. It will have representatives in all the principal cities and its first purpose will be to aid hard-pressed banks in the farm belt and coal regions. Once it gets under way, there should be a distinct improvement in the nation's credit situation.

The President's declaration on foreign loans also attracted attention here. He made it plain the administration still frowned upon "unproductive loans" to foreign nations. The warning may serve to check foolish foreign investments, which have cluttered up some banking institutions with depreciated foreign securities.

INSURANCE PLOT SEEN IN MURDER

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Oct. 9.—Sensing a wholesale insurance collection plot police today held Mrs. Mary Dragovich, 32, as a suspect in the murder of Nicholas Dunovic, 40, whose battered and knifed body was found near Campbell, O., yesterday.

Discovery of bloodstains in the boarding house room rented by Dunovic led to the arrest of the woman, who was the landlady at the dwelling, according to police.

Taken to police headquarters after she identified the body as that of Dunovic, Mrs. Dragovich admitted, police said, that she was the beneficiary of the victim's insurance policies.

PROMISE WARM SUN

FATE OF LEADING GANGSTER IN THEIR HANDS

Death Of First Woman Put On Spot Shocks Chicago

By MARGARET LANE
International News Service Staff Correspondent.
(Copyright, 1931, by International News Service)

CHICAGO, Oct. 9.—Al Capone's trial, instead of putting gangsters on their best behavior for a little, has stirred up a smoldering unrest in the Chicago underworld, and there have been several killings since the proceedings started.

For three days the net of criminal law has been spreading round the uneasy feet of Capone. Damning evidence has been admitted against him, although his attorneys protested for three and a half hours with a passionate shrillness that made the court laugh. Capone has worn a different suit every day of the trial, and given his finger nails a good deal of nonchalant attention during the proceedings, but there hangs round him an air of apprehension that the waiting crowds in the streets take no trouble to conceal.

Yet, for all that, there has been a sinister burst of gangster violence in the last twenty-four hours. The first "gun moll" to be put on the spot lies in the Chicago morgue with her body freckled with bullets and the bullet-ridden bodies of her two dogs lying on the cold slabs beside her.

Marion Miller was found dead in the back of Frank McElrath's automobile on the south side of the city in the early hours of yesterday morning. Her gangster lover, Mc-

Elrath, with whom she has exchanged bullets before, was gone. Her two dogs were shot to death beside her as though someone had sprayed the car with bullets in some unbalanced frenzy. The police have hunted all night for the missing man and the authorities are carrying out a secret scientific investigation in connection with the murder which is expected to yield valuable results today.

When the news spread through Chicago yesterday morning there was a buzz of horror wherever people were gathered together to talk. Marion Miller may have been a wild, lawless creature, but she is the first woman to be put on the spot in Chicago, and it has been a shock to the city.

The news filtered into the courtroom at noon, while Capone's lawyers were still haggling about the admissibility of a letter as evidence. In the recess a man slipped up to Capone.

"What do you know about this, Al?"

Capone smiled genially. "Not a thing. Wish I could tell you something about it, but I don't know any more than you. First I saw it was in the newspapers."

Capone and McElrath have a hostile acquaintance of some years' standing.

It seems as though Chicago were determined to live up to her reputation as a city of violent crime, in spite of the deprecators and Mayor Cermak, who constantly proclaims she is not so black as she is painted.

CONGO BOOMS WHEN MINE IS RE-OPENED

CONGO, O., Oct. 9.—Boom days for this Perry County town are hoped for by residents as preparations were started today for the re-opening of the Congo Coal Mine after a four year idleness.

At one time a town of 800 people, Congo's population has dwindled with the slump in mining activities. Employment of 200 men is expected by the local municipality when the mine is put into operation.

The Buckingham Coal Co. is the new operator. The mine, which once had a daily output of 1,000 tons, was formerly the joint project of the Sunday Creek Coal Co. and the Ohio Collieries Co.

HUGE FACTORY AT MANSFIELD IS DESTROYED

Flames Sweep Steel Products Plant Early Friday

MANSFIELD, O., Oct. 9.—Sweeping through the entire plant, a raging fire which was believed to have started from an over-heated oven, virtually destroyed the huge plant of the Martin Steel Products Co. here early today.

Damages were unofficially estimated at $150,000.

City firemen were almost helpless because of inadequate water lines at the plant, located on the outskirts of the city.

After battling the blaze more than four hours, firemen succeeded in halting the most damaging flames about fifty feet from the north entrance of the building, 250 by 100 feet in dimension.

Steel garages, farm storage buildings of fabricated steel, steel corn crips and grain bins were among the products of the plant.

As a result of the fire about fifty men, the smallest force employed in years, were thrown out of work. The plant normally employs 150 men.

As has been the case in the closing of a number of other banks seepage of deposits was given as the reason for the failure of the bank to continue its business. According to the latest statement available, the bank, one of the largest in the northeast section of the city, had resources of $9,779,915 and deposits of $7,150,155. Capital stock was set at $812,750.

Meanwhile banking leaders here adopted a resolution placing the blame for the present bank hysteria on communism.

MINING EXPERT DIES

ATHENS, O., Oct. 9.—The body of Field Scott, Athens coal operator and mining expert was brought to his home here today from Richlands, Virginia, where he died yesterday in a hospital after an illness of a week.

AKRON TAKEN ALOFT ON SIXTH FLIGHT

AKRON, O., Oct. 9.—Gliding into the air as the sun peeked over the horizon, the U. S. S. Akron, largest of the world's lighter-than-air craft, began her sixth test flight at 6:45 a. m. today.

The giant ship was expected to remain aloft until sundown during which time tests of various engine combinations, water recovery and acceleration were to be made. The craft was equipped with a complete new set of propellers for her eight engines on the flight.

EIGHTH BANK FAILS TO OPEN ITS DOORS

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 9.—The County Trust Co. and its seven branches failed to open today. It is the eighth bank to close here this week.

As has been the case in the closing of a number of other banks seepage of deposits was given as the reason for the failure of the bank to continue its business. According to the latest statement available, the bank, one of the largest in the northeast section of the city, had resources of $9,779,915 and deposits of $7,150,155. Capital stock was set at $812,750.

TRANSFER CAPITAL FROM NANKING; JAP WARSHIPS ARE SENT

Chinese Troops Mass Against Invasion; Fear Outbreak

PEIPING, Oct. 9.—With a fleet of eighteen Japanese warships en route to China and the threat of war growing almost hourly, the Chinese Nationalists government today began the transfer of its capital from Nanking to the more secluded city of Loyang.

Official dispatches received here said President Chiang Kai-Shek was moving his armies, equipment and state documents to Loyang as a precaution against Japanese occupation of Nanking. One report received in Peiping declared one of the fleet of eighteen Japanese warships had been ordered to anchor in the Yangtze River directly off Nanking.

While the central government moved to a safer area, heavy detachments of Chinese troops were left on Lion Hill, in back of Nanking, to repel any attempted Japanese invasion of the city. Grave fears of an outbreak were entertained by Chinese officials.

Faced with one of the gravest crises in its history, the Chinese Republic today celebrated the twenty-first anniversary of its founding. Marshal Chang Hsueh-Liang, governor of Manchuria, received American and Canadian delegates to the Pan-Pacific conference at his palace.

Vincent Massey, Canadian spokesman, informed him the conference had been postponed owing to the growing Sino-Japanese tension, but that informal meetings would take place in Shanghai instead.

In reply to Japan's protest against anti-Japanese demonstrations and boycott of Japanese goods, the nationalist government issued a proclamation assuming full responsibility for protection of the lives and property of Japanese nationals.

The statement pointed out, however, that the government "will in no circumstances undertake to suppress lawful patriotic movements on the part of the people," terming these as "natural and spontaneous gestures of resentment" against alleged Japanese aggression in Manchuria.

It was pointed out the Shidehara government has made efforts toward a peaceful settlement of the Manchurian trouble, but that the Japanese military authorities apparently were getting out of hand and forcing the issue.

CHINESE REQUEST ACTION BY LEAGUE

GENEVA, Oct. 9.—An urgent request that the council of the League of Nations be called into special session to consider the Manchurian crisis was made here today by the Chinese Nationalist government.

Referring to the renewal of Japanese military activities in Manchuria, Dr. Alfred Zee, the Chinese delegate, declared that because of the "greatly aggravated situation" prompt action by the league was necessary.

ACCUSE FATHER OF POISONING NINE

BUCKRUS, O., Oct. 9.—Charged with attempting to poison his nine children, Albert O. Kitzmiller, 51, of Crestline, today awaited a preliminary hearing tomorrow when he will answer an accusation made by his son, Clifford, 21.

Poison was found in coffee served at their home, Clifford Kitzmiller told authorities. He said both he and his father became ill after drinking the coffee.

Denying the charge, Kitzmiller said he mistook the poison for medicine.

COLORED MAN SLAIN WITH ICE-PICK

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 9.—Stabbed with an ice pick, Willie Robinson, 23, a Negro, died here today as police started a search through the city for a one-eyed Negro believed to have attacked him.

Edna King, a Negro girl, told police about the attack. She said she was riding in an automobile with Robinson when he was stabbed.

Princess, Wooed by Proxy, Pawn of Political Fates

King Carol of Roumania Reported Courting
Maria Francesca, 17, Daughter of King Victor Emmanuel of Italy, in Strange Way.

Girls, and presumably they are legion, who have sighed for the romantic aura which is popularly supposed to encircle the heads of princesses of the blood royal and insure their happiness amidst regal surroundings might find such an imaginary halo a crown of thorns if they were placed in the drama in which Princess Maria Francesca, 17, daughter of King Victor Emmanuel of Italy, probably is playing an unwelcome role. Reports from authoritative sources of Paris indicate that King Carol, he of the scandalous affair of the heart with Mme. Lupescu and marital difficulties with his former wife, Helene of Greece, is courting Princess Maria by proxy. Apparently the girl is being led to the slaughter as an innocent pawn of Old World politics, the adventurous King of the Rumanians not deigning openly to go through the required motions of making love where true romance is lacking.

PARIS, Oct. 9.—It is not enough that attractive 17-year-old Princess Maria Francesca is the pawn of political fates in matters of the heart, but she is being subjected to conditions of a romance of convenience which no other normal and "free" girl of her years would countenance. For, according to authoritative reports in this city which sees all, hears all and does all, the youthful, dark-haired daughter of King Victor Emmanuel of Italy is being courted not only by a man in whom she probably has not the chinations. The sultor who designs only to woo the Italian princess by special emissary, as another "matter of convenience," is the oft-publicized King of Rumania—Madcap Carol.

M. Manollescu, governor of the National Bank of Rumania and close friend of King Carol, has been entrusted with the delicate task of winning the favor of Princess Maria Francesca to a marital union with the royal scapegoat of Europe, if the proxy love-maker successfully presses his monarch's suit and convinces the pretty princess of Carol's kingly and husbandly possibilities, the nuptials are rumored for October.

Rather a short time for even a princess to make up her mind about her future mate, supposedly for life, but, of course, everybody knows that such unfortunate girls as Maria Francesca have no mind to make up. At least, when it comes to the all-important matter of international alliances via the altar.

There have been exceptions, as there are exceptions to every rule, but by far the great majority of girls born to kings and queens have been "auctioned" off to the foreign rulers whose prestige and power is believed worth the marital "bargain."

It is not difficult to imagine that Princess Maria Francesca will look upon the left-handed courting of the King of the Rumanians with emotions too close to disgust to be complimentary to Carol. His escapades with Mme. Lupescu in Paris mark him as the type of man whose marriage vows are closely related to mere "scraps of paper." King Carol's repeated difficulties with his former queen, Helene of Greece, are not exactly conducive to confidence in one's ballyhooed royal mate, but with Maria Francesca there is no choice. A valuable pawn in the political life of her country, she will be, no doubt, sacrificed to the great god of "convenience."

Princess Maria, the youngest daughter of the King and Queen of Italy, and one of the most attractive members of any European reigning house, also has been mentioned as a consort for Archduke Otto of Hapsburg, pretender to the Hungarian throne. This proposed match, however, has been cancelled, as Otto's chances of the kingship and therefore any political power which might be swung to Italy have been fading steadily. The next few weeks may witness the formal announcement of the Princess Maria Francesca's betrothal to King Carol. There probably is no good reason for waiting a few weeks as the purported nuptials are reportedly agreed upon now. But in order to avoid affording the Princess any embarrassment or inconvenience, this "matter of convenience" will be staged with dramatic aspects after Carol's proxy has had sufficient time to "win" the maidenly Maria Francesca.

GHOST MYSTERY SOLVED

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 9.—The mystery of the South-Side "haunted" tree has been solved. Residents here had been kept awake for several nights by a mysterious loud wailing sound. Investigation during the day failed to discover the cause to the disturbance. One night a brave man ventured to climb up in a tree. He found a limb rubbing a telephone pole. The neighborhood sleeps soundly now.

We Have A Twofold Purpose

The business of this institution is to keep safe the investments and savings of the people and have the money profitably employed.

For nearly a half century no stockholder, investor, or saver has ever lost a dollar of principal nor missed a penny of interest semi-annually when due.

Money placed with us is not kept in a vault for safe keeping. . . . to be returned to investors on demand. . . . but is loaned out to produce the high rate of interest that this institution pays.

Ordinarily, withdrawal demand is so small that it can be met instantly. In abnormal times, however, it is necessary for us to pay out only as our patrons pay in. . . . a practice which certainly hasn't anything to do with the safety and solvency of this institution.

Bride of Duke?

The romance between the Hon. Eame Connelley, Helen Glyn (above), youngest daughter of Lord Wolverton, and the Duke of Norfolk has society circles of London and England all agog. The engagement of the notable pair has been reported, but unconfirmed. The Duke of Norfolk is the premier duke and earl in the peerage and is Earl Marshal and Hereditary Marshal of England.

COMMUNITY GRADES

SCHOOL HOUSE LAWN

AT YELLOW SPRINGS

Special exercises in observance of Community Week in Yellow Springs were held at Bryan High School in the village Friday. More than fifty volunteer workers of the community donated their services and graded the lawn of the school and put in a driveway. They were given luncheon at noon by women of the community.

Flag raising exercises were held at the school at 3 p. m. The new flag pole was donated to the public school by Antioch College. The school children led by the Boy Scouts, the Girl Scouts, and Campfire Girls took part in the ceremony.

A double-header basketball game between the boys and girls' teams of the high school and independent boys' and girls' teams of the village will be held Friday evening in the gymnasium. Between the games gymnastic stunts will be put on by the high school pupils under the direction of Miss Mary Ellen Christopher, director of girls' athletics and Everett Snyder, boys' athletic director. Musical entertainment will be furnished by Joseph Jerce, violinist, of the music department of Wittenberg College, Springfield. Proceeds from the basketball games will be used to purchase gravel for the new driveway and improvements of the school grounds.

Mr. Reavis, of the state department of education, inspected the Yellow Springs High School Thursday and complimented school officials on their work.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Have not I commanded thee? Be strong and of a good courage; be not afraid, neither be thou dismayed; for the Lord thy God is with thee whithersoever thou goest.—Joshua, 1, 9.

ENGLAND'S ELECTION

The decision of the British cabinet to call a national election, probably to be held on Oct. 28, is in accord with the program announced by Premier MacDonald when the present National Government went into power. It is not, however, in harmony with the judgment and desire of the British bankers who have urged continuance of emergency regime until the end of the five-year period, when, under the Constitution, a general election must be held. And, according to reports, it is not in harmony with the judgment of King George, who is supposed to have counseled Mr. MacDonald against summoning the country to the polls. There is every reason to suppose, too, that the premier himself would much prefer to keep on with his present Government for an indefinite period. Since he has decided not to try doing so, the world may presume that he has found the course impractical.

It does not follow, however, that Mr. MacDonald contemplates quitting power without a fight. The evidences are to the contrary. He never did contribute to the dissemination of the early assumption that his public career had crashed because the Labor Government had collapsed. And when the Labor Party ejected and repudiated him, it emancipated him as much as it hurt him. In losing his place as a party leader, Mr. MacDonald became more than ever before a British statesman.

There is no reason to suppose that the premier is blind to the significance of his position or to the opportunities such a position may offer a person that is able to grasp them. His intention to remain a figure in the British Government, and it feasible at the head of the British Government, seems to be made quite clear by the conferences he has been holding with Conservative and Liberal party leaders, and which concluded with a visit to Lloyd George just before the country received notification that an election is on the way.

The legitimacy of Mr. MacDonald's conduct arises out of the fact that he unquestionably believes himself the person best fitted to lead his country through its present crisis, as he very probably is. Apparently many of the Conservatives have the same idea in their heads, which isn't altogether wonderful since the premier by temperament is really more of a Conservative than anything else. And there seem now to be indications that enough Liberals and Laborites may swing into line to enable him to go into an election with a prestige of general leadership somewhat analogous to that which Lloyd George possessed during the World War and early postwar periods.

JAPAN WARNS?

A dispatch from Mukden quotes The Manchurian Daily News, a Japanese newspaper, as warning the United States to keep its fingers out of the Manchurian pie. The tenor of its comment is ominous:

"If America is going to interfere with China's just retribution, then America will jeopardize the life and security of every foreigner in China; but luckily America, at this time, does not have an exhausted Europe to deal with, but a Japan fresh and prepared to call America's unholy bluff. No interference from any third party is our motto, and this time no American troops and ships are going to cross the seas. Japan is going to withdraw her troops from China in good time and not before she has made Manchuria safe for democracy."

The opinion of a single editor is not to be taken as that of the Japanese Government. At the same time the opinion of this particular editor so exactly represents the feeling of Japanese generally for America and Americans that it should not be lightly regarded. The Japanese have drawn a "circle of the Church" around Manchuria—and damned be he who sets foot within that circle, with such nonsensical deliriums as that of the "open door."

As far as the public has been taken into Washington's confidences, all the interference of which the United States has been guilty in connection with Japan's rape of Manchuria has consisted of a polite reminder to both China and Japan that they are signatories to a pact outlawing war as a means of settling international controversies. That hardly justifies the bellicose ebullition quoted above. Our interest in Manchuria is not political. We have a commercial interest there, which the Japanese have done their best, from the beginning of their penetration of Manchuria, to hamstring. Any "interference" of the United States in the Manchurian question probably will be confined to protecting that interest. All that the Mukden editor will accomplish by his wild warnings will be the sowing of obstacles in Mr. Hoover's path to a naval holiday at this time.

HAS ITS HOUR

We have all experienced what we have considered evidence that the busy bee and the industrious ant are mere sluggards compared with the indefatigable and tireless mosquito. In the spring time particularly, we have felt justified in taking oath that the mosquito performs the fourth dimensional feat of remaining on active duty for 26 hours out of the 24. But the learned entomologists of the Department of Agriculture in Washington tell us that they do nothing of the sort. After much watching and learned research these savants find themselves in a position to inform us that mosquitoes work in relays. The different breeds go on and off duty according to a fixed schedule. While one sort labors, the other sorts sleep or play.

The "rain barrel," or common mosquito, is a night bird. She bites only after dark; and when we say "she" we mean "she." For, as with humans, so with mosquitoes, the female of the species is more deadly than the male. She alone is a vampire. The male is a vegetarian. It is the "rain barrel" variety that does all the fussing and buzzing over your pillow.

The yellow fever mosquito works on the day and relief shifts, so to speak. She operates chiefly in the morning and late in the afternoon, but if opportunity offers will employ her proboscis on convenient victims at any time between sunrise and sunset. She has a nasty disposition and is fond of sneaking up stealthily from behind like a gangster and biting low.

The fresh water marsh mosquito lolls around in the grass throughout the day, asking only to be let alone, but adventures abroad at dusk and makes up for her hours of sloth by biting with peculiar emphasis. After the moon rises she gives way to the malarial mosquito, a silent partner of the "rain barrel variety" that does her dirty work with great efficiency because you neither see nor hear her.

The moral in all this, so far as we can see, is its refutation of the age-long legend that females cannot do team work. If the experts at the Department of Agriculture are right, the members of the "gentler sex" in mosquito-land do nothing else but.

Like any other sort of carpenter work, a political platform should be built according to a plan. But how is that going to be done in cases where each person interested in the construction work has a different sort of blue print?

MY NEW YORK

By JAMES ASWELL

NEW YORK—Young doctors on ambulance duty in New York see such a constant, jumbled melee of living and dying that their personalities shift quickly into odd variants of cynicism and maturity. Some of them develop into physicians with perspective and kindness. Some of them are permanently glazed by fierce, tired life in early manhood.

All in all, they are a problem. They tend to lose the scholastic aims of the classroom early. Called on constantly to treat simple and compound fractures, cuts, alcoholism and dope addiction, they fall back on simple devices, simple remedies. They can't help suspecting that the science of medicine is unnecessarily complicated by the professors.

"There are only three medicines," said a hard bright youngster to me the other night, a lad who had two years of ambulance work behind him and would shortly hang out his own shingle. "There are only three remedies a doctor needs to know. They are iodine, salvarsan and quinine."

That remark, if my memory serves me, is similar to a statement made years ago by a famous surgeon. I doubt that my friend was quoting. He simply was reiterating the lesson of experience.

"FIREMEN, FIREMEN!"

He went on to tell me about families on the lower East Side who ran to the fire alarm box for every minor tragedy. If there was an unexpected birth in the family, the hook-and-ladder boys were summoned. If papa came home steering an irregular course and hit mama with a rock, out came a platoon of disgusted firemen.

"And nine times out of ten those firemen do as good a job at first aid as any of us could. They use common sense. That's all this racket needs."

Somerset Maugham, the novelist, spent his early years as interne in one of the poorest London districts. Asked whether experiences there were responsible for his once ironic dispar in his stories, he once said, "Not a bit. What I came to those days seemed frightfully glamorous. Tragically then could take on the guise of adventure. I was very young."

ONLY IN NEW YORK—

In Harlem last night—a first visit after two years... Three singers in a black-and-tan cabaret, growing spirituals in the approved manner... Admitting, between the acts, that they were from Chicago... "We got a book of spirituals. Learn a new one every week."

Which is reminiscent of the difficulty experienced by several septa shows on Broadway during past seasons... Couldn't find leads with that "way-down-South" drawl, so colored performers who had certificates from swank elocution schools had to settle down and learn the lingo of their forebears.

Harlem is no longer fashionable, although the crowds continue to mill into the Cotton club, Connie's Inn and such spots... There's a saying along Broadway that no night place can keep up the quality of its crowds through more than two seasons, because swankiness inevitably spoils waiters and proprietors and service begins to droop... Harlem is proving that contention for a whole district...

DOLLARS AND SENSE

BORAH NEVER WILL SEEK PRESIDENTIAL OFFICE, NEWSPAPERMEN CONCLUDE

WASHINGTON—Senator William E. Borah, when in Washington, holds regular "conferences" so called, with the newspaper men, just as President Hoover does, and the senator's conferences rival the president's as to the number of correspondents who attend them.

Attendance at the president's has dwindled since his first few months in office, for Mr. Hoover seldom has much to say. He frequently has highly important information to give out, but generally this class of matter is distributed among the reporters by executive underlings, in the form of mimeographed statements. If the president would supplement these statements with an occasional snappy remark, when he sees the chroniclers, he could draw them to his receptions in crowds, but he hardly ever does; does not care for crowds, ever does.

Sensor Borah issues statements—also carbon copies, for he's a poor man and can't stand the expense of mimeographing. Consequently there usually are not enough to go around and the correspondents fight for them.

Aside from his statements, however, there is inspiration in the senator's personality. One may disagree with him violently and yet be electrified by the fashion in which he expresses himself.

Moreover, he has thrilling potentialities.

For example: His recent return to the capital from Idaho followed, by but a day or two, the appearance of Mr. Coolidge's article eliminating himself as a possibility for the Republican presidential nomination in 1932, thus practically extinguishing all idea of serious competition for Mr. Hoover—except in the event of a decision by Senator Borah to enter the race.

True, no trustworthy political prophet actually predicts such a thing.

Still, there is breath-taking excitement in the mere thought of the extent to which he would rip next year's G. O. P. convention open, should he yield to the im-portunities of progressives who want to launch his candidacy.

Consequently accommodations were at a premium at the Idaho statesman's initial autumn meeting, in his suite in the Senate office building, with members of the Washington journalistic corps—some 30 of them, fully as many as at an average White House audience of the same sort.

Sensor Borah's appearance often is described as "leisurely." It is not, except that he has a rather shaggy head of hair—graying over his ears and with a bald spot about the size of a silver dollar exactly atop of his cranium. He probably is unconscious of it. It is not so situated as to show, looking dead ahead into a mirror.

What the senator's face does suggest is a bulldog's, even to a slight upward twitch at the left-hand corner of the upper lip, revealing an ominous fighting tooth now and again.

Yet the bulldog, unaroused, is a kindly creature (Dr. Austin Clark, premier naturalist at the Smithsonian Institution, maintains that all animals of great strength and courage are) whose blunt, homely, craggy visage reflects a gentle soul—as does Senator Borah's, until some one really needs to be chewed up, when he is thoroughly competent to attend to that, too.

"Senator," began one of the scribes, "folk are speculating considerably concerning your presidential attitude."

"Let 'em speculate," grinned the senator.

That, in effect, was as far as that line of questioning progressed. There was more talk, but it arrived nowhere, and the understanding was that the Idahoan was not to be quoted anyway, beyond his typewritten statements, and those already have been telegraphed hither and yon.

The net conclusion is that it is mighty unlikely Senator Borah ever will be a candidate for any future nomination other than for the senate again, upon his current term's expiration.

As to the presidency, this undoubtedly is his last chance, for he will be past 70 by the 1936 convention, and that traditionally is too old.

It is, of course, improbable, besides, that he could take the nomination from Mr. Hoover now. That he could split the party wide open and destroy the Californian's last hope of re-election is, rather, the argument which the progressives advance—but to do so would be at the expense of his prestige, not theirs. And no one ever has accused the Idahoan of indifference to his own political interests, which he understands exceedingly well.

Prohibition was the subject of fully one-half the conversation at the conference.

In my opinion there is not a drier man in public life than Senator Borah.

He is no pussyfoot. He always implies unmistakably that he might vote for a satisfactory substitute for the present system, were one offered, but the inference is equally plain that the chances are around 1,000 to 1 against the prospect that such a substitute will be found—that is, a substitute satisfactory to him.

Will he support Mr. Hoover for re-election?

Had it been anyone else who painted the gloomy picture of economic conditions that he painted at that conference, I am sure the answer of any listener would have been an emphatic "No."

But this was Senator Borah. He always says such things between campaigns; the campaign's opening always finds him as regular as regularity can be.

Despite his recitation of lamentable facts, I observed that he uttered not a syllable which could commit him to a criticism of anyone as responsible for them.

Is This a Busy World? A Little Girl Climbed a Pole A Crowd Gathered

This is a very busy world. Everybody says it. Hardly anybody has time for anything he wants to do. If you want people to come to dinner, you must ask them a week ahead of time. People are so busy they hardly ever see their friends. They think of them occasionally, they wonder what they are doing with themselves, but they don't see them... They get letters and haven't time to answer them. Their friends drift away from them... They rush for trains, they run after street cars, they gasp for breath.

There are so many good books they'd like to read... but they haven't time. They used to play the piano or read, but it's years since they've done so... they haven't time. They'd like to play golf... they haven't time. They'd like to work in the garden... they haven't time. They'd like to fix the automobile themselves... they haven't time. They need a minor operation... they haven't time. They'd like to lose... but, again, they haven't time.

Such a busy world this is! With people rushing here and there and no time at all for the things they say they want, most of all, to be doing.

Is THAT so?

And the next time people tell me this is a busy age, I'll tell THEM about all the people who stopped to watch a little girl climb a pole.

Today's Recipes—Vegetable Chowder—Sauté one chopped onion and one diced green pepper in three tablespoons butter until a golden color. Add two cups water and two cups diced raw potatoes, two cups freshly cooked green lima beans and one cup freshly cut corn and simmer until potatoes are tender. Add one large can tomatoes and two teaspoons salt, one-fourth teaspoon pepper and bring to boiling. Serves eight to ten.

Today's Recipes—Ground Beef Broiled on Toast—One pound ground raw beef, eight slices bread, butter, salt and pepper to taste. Toast the bread on one side. Butter the untoasted side, spread to the edge with a layer of the ground beef, dot with the butter and broil under a flame for about five minutes. Season with salt and pepper, and serve at once with a garnish of parsley or pickles.

Explains Effects Of Paralysis

By LOGAN CLENDENIN, M. D.

Infantile paralysis is a disease of late summer and autumn. There are always a small number of cases in the United States somewhere. This year the Atlantic seaboard has had a severe epidemic.

The disease is due to infection with a germ or one of the filterable viruses. It damages the nervous system with especial cruelty. The mysterious feature of the disease is to explain how the germ gets to the nervous system without affecting any superficial structures.

Most infections show by what path they enter the body. Typhoid fever is conveyed by water or food and is absorbed through the digestive tract, leaving inflammatory patches in the intestines at the point of entrance. Diphtheria is air borne and the signs of disease are all in the air passages. But, differing from these, infantile paralysis enters the body, passes mysteriously through all like outer defenses and attacks the nervous system, well guarded and situated deeply inside the body structures. The theory is that it gets in through the nose or throat, but nothing certain is known.

A way to explain the disease is to say that the virus has an affinity for the nervous system—just as certain chemicals have an affinity through all the outer defenses for each other. It is a very elective affinity because the only part of the nervous system that is affected are the central cells of the motor nerves. It is their destruction which causes the paralysis.

Paralysis may be caused by disease of many different parts of the nervous system. It may be compared for purposes of understanding to a telephone exchange. If your telephone does not work it may be because your own house set is out of whack—which would correspond to disease of the muscle itself. Or it may be because the wire from your house to the local exchange is broken—similar to neuritis, such as the victims of "jake" paralysis had. Or your local exchange may be destroyed by fire—and this is the condition in infantile paralysis. A last kind of telephone trouble would result from the control exchange burning down—which is similar to what occurs in the paralysis following apoplexy.

Just as if your local telephone exchange burned, central exchange could not get a call through to your house, so in infantile paralysis the intermediary motor nerve cell in the spinal cord is destroyed and the motor center in the brain cannot get a voluntary impulse through to the nerve fiber that goes to the muscle controlled by the spinal cord motor cell. The muscle is all right (until later when it atrophies) and so is the nerve fiber and the brain.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS
R. L.: "Will you please advise me whether buttermilk and sour cream are fattening?"

Answer: The question is frequently asked in that form and cannot be answered satisfactorily. It shows a complete misunderstanding of the fundamental principles of reducing diets. All foods are fattening? If you drank nothing else but buttermilk and drank the same amount of it that you would whole sweet milk, you would get half as many calories. In that sense it is less fattening than whole milk. But if you drank only buttermilk instead of an equal amount of unsweetened lemonade it would be more fattening. The elements that are left out of the question are—how much buttermilk do you drink? and—is it fattening compared to what? There are no foods which have special fattening tendencies or special thinning qualities.

Mrs. —: "Will you kindly explain why girls lose their figure after childbirth?"

Answer: The explanation is not simple. Mechanical factors are partly responsible—the abdomen enlarges during pregnancy and stays that way because the muscles have been stretched. The same applies to the breasts. The enlargement of the hips and thighs is attributed to a disturbance of the secretion of the ductless glands.

How many marriages are ideally happy, I wonder? A few, I am sure, not many.

It's queer how different a person can be when you live with him day after day to when you see him only occasionally. Before marriage both are all dressed up ready for company—mind, manners and morals. After the wedding the true persons appear.

Happy is he or she who finds that the one they marry is on the whole sweeter, more unselfish and thoughtful than they had imagined.

"Dear Virginia Lee: I've been married five years and have a small daughter, but I'm very unhappy because of my husband. I have lost many friends through him. I love to dance, but I never have danced a step since I married."

"He objects to everything I do. He can go where he likes and when he likes, but if I ever did that I would be murdered. He wants his meals on the dot and I have to always ready. The house is clean and the baby well taken care of."

"It wasn't for the baby I'd quit him and never regret it. My friends have told me time and again what a fool I am for not quitting. Would you advise me to?"

"Unhappy Wife."

One of the worst things we women do is to talk our husbands over with our feminine friends. I suppose he takes the place of the boss or the boy friend and we feel free to discuss him with the girls as we did them. But many a marriage has gone on the rocks because a young wife's friends encouraged her to complain of her husband and persuaded her that she was abused.

Now I'm not saying that your husband is an ideal person to live with. No husband is that. But neither is any wife. Both are human and have plenty of faults, and when one has been married as long as you have, the faults seem to be more numerous than the virtues.

But in spite of the fact that your man is selfish in not taking you to a dance occasionally and in wanting his freedom to go and come as he pleases, without giving you the same privilege, hasn't he some virtues? Couldn't you concentrate on them and forget some of his faults?

Just try it and see if you can't regain some of the love and glamour of your courting days, and keep your home together and make it a happy one for your little daughter to grow up in. What would you have said before you were married if any of your friends had knocked over your boy friend to you?

Milky Way: Call the boy up or write to him and tell him you would like to have your belongings returned. If he pays no attention, let your parents handle the matter.

Joe Kendle: Call up your county board of health and ask them to direct you to your nearest free medical clinic. They will take care of the case.

Take Time To Remove Tan

By GLADYS GLAD

We laugh nowadays, we alleged, wises, at the fantastic things our forebears once did because of their belief in magic. And yet, judging from my recent mail, there still are many women who believe in magic, even in this matter-of-fact age. For girls who have passed the entire summer in acquiring a coat of tan, or who have become severely freckled, have been writing in to request a remedy that will remove these discolorations immediately. And such a remedy would indeed be nothing short of magical.

A heavy crop of freckles or a deep tan cannot be removed overnight, if the health of the skin is not to be endangered. Severe bleaches often contain corrosive substances or other dangerous stuffs that may make the skin even more sensitive to freckles. In fact, if drastic bleaching processes are tried, days of confinement might even follow as a result of severe irritation.

The best thing to do is to use mild bleaches, so that the skin will gradually return to its normal hue, and at the same time will retain its softness of texture. Don't forget that it took time for you to acquire that coat of tan or flock of freckles. And therefore you should, in all fairness give your skin an equal amount of time to regain its natural coloring.

There are many mild bleaches that will help to remove freckles or tan without injuring the skin. You may use plain lemon juice or dilute peroxide, sponging your skin with either of them after you have thoroughly cleansed it.

Or you may use a half and half mixture of both or them. Again, the following fruit and vegetable juices are all innocuous enough, and yet effective as bleaches: strawberry, tomato, lemon and cucumber juices. Two ounces of lemon juice and one ounce of glycerine comprise another effective bleach, as does two ounces of peroxide and one ounce of rosewater.

If a stronger bleach is desired, a mixture of two ounces of rosewater, one ounce of glycerine, and four ounces of lactic acid may be used. Bleaches should be permitted to dry on the skin after they have been administered. And because they generally tend to have a drying effect on the skin, a bit of nourishing or cold cream should be applied after their use.

ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS
Hair
Nettie: A side part would be better suited to you than a center part. A long evening dress will indeed help to add to your apparent height.

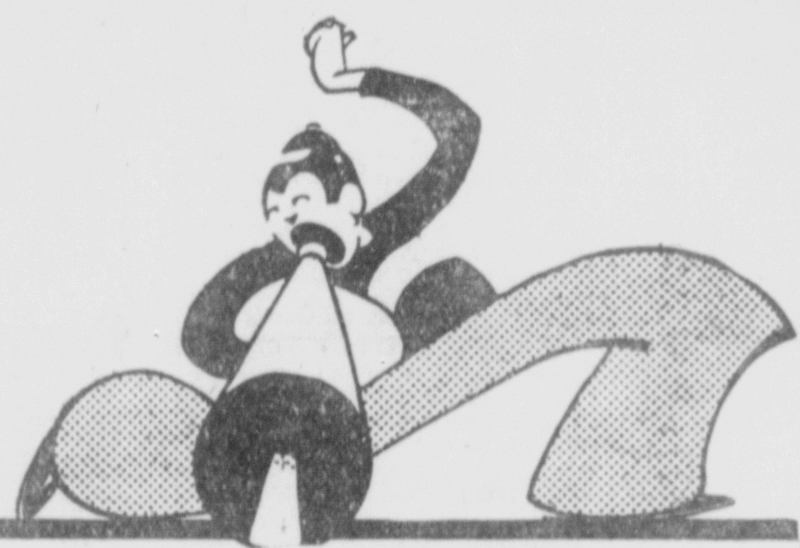

Neck
Mrs. U.: My method of eradicating a double chin, and making the neck firm and youthful is too long to print here. However, it is contained, along with the method of dimming wrinkles, in my "Beauty Culture" booklet.

Nails
Flo: Massage warmed olive oil into the base of each nail nightly. This will help to alleviate the ridges and correct the brittleness.

Cosmetics
Goldie: I think that a soft peach shade of powder, soft orange rouge, and light lipstick would blend harmoniously with your coloring.

Editor's Note: While it is impossible for Miss Glad to answer beauty questions by mail, she will be happy to send you her pamphlets on "The New Figure" and "Beauty Culture" if you will write her, care of this paper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and ten cents in coin for each, to cover cost of printing and handling. For her articles on "Care of the Hands and Nails" and "Care of the Feet and Legs," two cents in coin for each, and a self-addressed, stamped envelope are required. Personal questions on beauty will be answered through Miss Glad's daily column.

OLD TOWN MARKER WILL BE DEDICATED

A stone marker erected to the memory of ten soldiers of the Revolutionary War who fell in battle near Old Town will be dedicated at services in the Old Town School yard Sunday afternoon, October 18. The Xenia Ministerial Association, under its new president, Dr. H. B. McElree, is planning the dedicatory program in cooperation with the Greene County Historical Society.

The Rev. W. H. Tiltford, pastor of the Presbyterian Church, will give a historical address and Chief Thomas Wildcat Alford will attend. Dr. W. A. Galloway, local historian and authority on Greene County Indian lore, is superintending erection of the monument. The stone is now being prepared and will be in place in time for the dedication ceremony.

Poems that Live

HEREDITY
WHY bowest, thou, O soul of mine,
Crushed by ancestral sin?
Thou hast a noble heritage,
That bids thee victory win.

The tainted past may bring forth flowers,
As blossomed Aaron's rod;
No legacy of sin annuls
Heredit from God.

They Play "Rail Wreck"—2 Die

The sight of a railroad switch as they crossed the tracks to fetch a pail of water for their mother was too much for these youngsters to resist. The brothers, Leonard and Arthur Hahn, 11 and 9 year old sons of Mr. and Mrs. Noah Hahn, of Lock Haven, Pa., threw the switch open to "play railroad wreck." Just as the switch was thrown, a train approached and the boys fled to their home in terror. The resultant wreck killed the fireman and brakeman. Sentence has been deferred until a special session of the Lock Haven juvenile court.

MERCHANTS PLAN HALLOWE'EN CARNIVAL HERE ON OCTOBER 29

Hallowe'en will be officially celebrated in Xenia Thursday evening, October 29, it was announced Friday by the Xenia Retail Merchants' Association. Plans for a carnival on that date are being worked out by a committee of the merchants of which Fred W. Lang is chairman.

There will be a street parade and other events, including a corn husking contest, a hog-calling contest and other contests, according to tentative plans. Members of Mr. Lang's committee are Arthur Miller, C. A. Bone, Harry Richards and I. M. Hyman.

Hallowe'en will be on Saturday this year but it was decided to hold the affair two days previous so as not to interfere with Saturday evening business. Xenia did not officially celebrate the holiday last year but a similar carnival was sponsored by the merchants' association in 1930.

Dr. Howard Hyde Russell (above), founder of the Anti-Saloon League of America, is busy at work in Westerville, Ohio, "home town" of the arid organization, preparing for a monster new drive to increase the effectiveness of prohibition. Dr. Russell reports that in the campaign to win over the 8,000,000 new voters in the 1932 election, 6,000,000 young folks already have been enrolled.

Uses Size to Good Advantage

Lucky brute—this horse. Not only is he the largest nag at the Los Angeles County Fair at Pomona, Calif., but "Sam" (that's his name) certainly knows how to use his size to the best advantage. Entered by the Carnation Stables, "Sam," a 2,500-pound Percheron, is shown carrying seven pretty riders with all the ease with which ordinary horses carry a single person. Almost needless to say, "Sam" took all the prizes, even without his fair load.

LOUISIANA USES COTTON SURPLUS

Determined to aid in using the surplus supply of cotton in the south, folks in Louisiana are lying awake nights thinking of uses for the downy commodity. Above, Governor Huey P. Long is being presented with a cotton tie, by Miss Iris Davenport, clothing specialist with the state university agricultural extension division. Below, Miriam McMillan of Acadia parish, Louisiana, offers two bales of cotton in payment of her student fees at Louisiana State university. The cotton will be held by university officials and if it advances in price Miss McMillan will be given credit. The university has extended the privilege of paying fees with cotton.

"Pirates" Widow Bares Truth

A new photograph of Mrs. Lillian Collings is this one taken of her seated in the door of her home in Stamford, Conn. It is the first photo she has permitted since "pirates" raided the yacht of her husband, Benjamin P. Collings, drowned him and kidnapped her. She now tells authorities that she thinks robbery was the only motive of the men who perpetrated the crime.

Every little line has a meaning all its own, in the new dresses. Linda Watkins, debutante star of the film, chose this frock of pale green satin, the lines of which give Linda a tall, slender effect. It is flared from the hips and sides and is extremely décolleté.

The Rev. J. J. Callahan (above), president of Duquesne University, Pittsburgh, Pa., solved a problem that has defied the efforts of the world's best mathematicians for hundreds of years. Melvin A. Traylor (above), 52, president of the National Chamber of Commerce and head of the First National Bank of Chicago, is one of the first "native sons" to be boomed for the Presidency on the Democratic ticket. Twelve thousand Kentuckians assembled at Columbia, Ky., to proclaim the candidacy of Traylor, he having been born near the scene of the huge barbecue-political rally.

A Mountain of Tires

Anybody that drives an automobile knows full well there are many more of 'em in the world, but this mountain of 2,000,000 used tires in Los Angeles affords graphic proof of the extent of the industry. Huge piles of tires, like this one, which covers 10 acres and is from 75 to 100 feet high, are collected by a salvage concern for domestic and foreign use. Some are rebuilt into new tires, others are sent to Europe, where they are converted into hard rubber products. Others go to China, where they are made into cheap footwear.

Hold the Ropes

"And how shall they preach, except they be sent?"
—Romans 10:15.

AS William Carey started on his great missionary venture, he said to his friends, "Yonder in India is a gold mine. I will go down and dig, but you at home must hold the ropes." Their loyal response helped to make possible Carey's monumental work through 41 years of priceless service. He not only preached and taught indefatigably, and translated the Bible into many native tongues, but he was largely responsible for the passage of laws to abolish the inhuman practices of burning widows and of throwing babies into the Ganges.

As our missionaries go forth today, they ask that we, also, "hold the ropes." Can we do less?

COMMISSION ENDORSES PLAN TO CHANGE DIXIE HIGHWAY ROUTE

A resolution endorsing the plan to reroute the Dixie Highway so that Xenia would be placed on this much-traveled federal highway was adopted by City Commission Thursday night.

Owing to objections that would naturally arise from any movement to change the route of the highway, known as U. S. Route 25, a compromise plan is now being considered, state and federal highway officials reveal, whereby the route, famous for tourist travel, may be split into two sections.

The argument is being advanced that by dividing the route, the principal north and south highway in the United States, into two sections, the heavy traffic on the present route from Findlay to Cincinnati would be alleviated.

Under plans proposed, the Dixie would be split at Findlay and branch off along two routes. The west section would follow the existing route south by way of Lima, Piqua, Dayton, Middletown, Hamilton to Cincinnati. The eastern section would pass through Kenton, Bellefontaine, Urbana, Springfield, Yellow Springs, Xenia, Lebanon and Mason to Cincinnati, following U. S. Route 42 from Xenia.

None of the federal routes is more heavily traveled, than the Dixie, it is claimed. A survey has shown that between 8,000 and 12,000 autos travel this route daily, most of them being tourists. The tourists admittedly stimulate the business of the cities through which the popular U. S. highways pass, and much opposition results from any effort to change any federal routes. The division plan, however, reduces the opposition and also provides a solution to the problem of traffic congestion, it is pointed out.

OSBORN PHYSICIAN HURT IN ACCIDENT

Dr. Robert Reed, 34, Osborn, is confined in the city hospital at Auburn, N. Y. with severe leg and arm lacerations sustained when his automobile skidded off the highway near that city Thursday afternoon.

State troopers investigated the accident. Dr. Reed was known to have been visiting at Ridgeway, N. J. His wife had accompanied him on the motor trip. The physician is said to have been in poor health for some time and friends expressed fear that complications might follow the injuries.

SPEAKS SATURDAY AT DEDICATION

CHIEF ALFORD

Chief Thomas Wildcat Alford, head of the Shawnee Indian Reservation in Oklahoma, will be one of the speakers at the dedication of a new gateway to the old Massie Creek Cemetery, near Cedarville, Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Dr. W. R. McChesney, president of Cedarville College, will give the main address of the afternoon.

The D. A. R. ritualistic services will precede Dr. McChesney's address and music will be furnished by the Cedarville Band. Mrs. Chas. Ervin of Cedar Cliff Chapter, D. A. R., will officially present the gateway to Xenia Twp., and it will be accepted by Grant, township trustee.

Cedar Cliff Chapter has sponsored the restoration of the cemetery, which is one of Greene County's historic spots. Many soldiers are buried there including fourteen veterans of the Revolutionary War. This will be the second historical spot in the county to be marked during the past year. The public is invited to the services Saturday.

The new gateway is marked with two large wooden columns and a bronze marker has been placed on each column. One marker is in honor of Mr. and Mrs. James Stevenson who gave the three acre tract to the old Massie Creek Church in 1894, with the request that it be used as a graveyard.

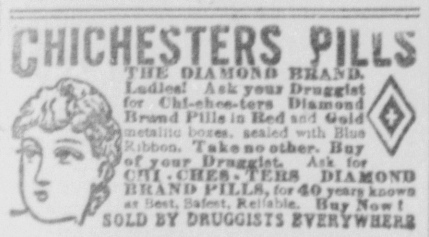

OWNER GIVES DEED FOR ALLEY TO CITY

Ownership of an alley extending north from the north side of E. Second St., adjoining Swigart Brothers garage, has been acquired by the city.

The city was given a deed to the alley Thursday by W. D. Wright, owner of the alley and the adjoining building occupied by the garage.

The transfer legally opens the alley to public use. Technically, the alley had heretofore been a private one, although it has been used by the public for years.

The deed was accepted by the city.
